CONCIERGE.COM RELEASES TOP DESTINATIONS FOR 2007

NEW YORK, January 10, 2007 — Concierge.com, the internet's leading website for travel inspiration, today releases its annual "It" list of the 10 must-visit destinations for the year. This year's list encompasses off-the-beaten path spots such as the unexplored terrain of Slovenia and the new eco-paradise of Gabon in West Africa.

The complete list is available at www.concierge.com. Highlights of the list include:

- Itacaré, Brazil: Warapuru, Anouska Hempel's new property, set to open this spring, is going to be a destination in itself: 40 pavilions in the rainforest facing the ocean, big spa and cutting edge design. The favorite destination of Gisele and Sean Penn.
- Ljubljana, Slovenia: With a mix of Italian and Eastern European flavors, Ljubljana is earning its title as "the new Prague." It's still unspoiled but on the cusp of becoming a much talked about destination.
- Macao, China: The Vegas of the Far East: The new Wynn, Four Seasons, MGM, and Venetian hotels will be opening here, and a new Cirque du Soleil theatre is planned. Macao is interesting historically because of its Portuguese influence in architecture and food.
- Gabon: Located on West Africa's central coast, environmentalists will love Gabon's primary rain forest, long stretches of pristine beach, and large swaths of land preserved as national park.
- Istanbul, Turkey: Arguably the "European" city of the moment, Turkey represents a perfect hybrid of European chic and Middle Eastern hospitality. New airline routes have made it more accessible.

"In 2007 we will see travelers' horizons expanding into less-trafficked areas like West Africa or the Argentine countryside," said Peter J. Frank, Editor-in-Chief of Concierge.com. "At the same time many familiar destinations, like Istanbul and Miami, are remaking themselves to attract a sophisticated audience."
